

Apakah Partisipasi Masyarakat Dapat Mencegah Korupsi ?

Title	Apakah Partisipasi Masyarakat Dapat Mencegah Korupsi ?
Author Order	1 of 1
Accreditation	4
Abstract	The Indonesian government has developed policies aimed at encouraging village governments to learn to do business. Through the allocation of funds given to the village government, it is hoped that the village can develop a village-owned business. In its development, village governments in Indonesia have responded well to this policy, so that currently many villages have business units. However, as a public business, it is necessary to ask whether the village business has been carried out in an accountable manner. Therefore, this study aims to analyze the accountability system of village business management in Indonesia. This study uses a public governance approach, because village businesses use public funds, so public involvement is very important in its management. This research was conducted using quantitative methods, targeting BUMDes in Banyumas. The results of the study show how public participation can prevent corruption.
Publisher Name	Asosiasi Ilmuwan Administrasi Negara (ASIAN)
Publish Date	2022-11-03
Publish Year	2022
Doi	DOI: 10.47828/jianaasian.v10i2.118
Citation
Source	Jurnal Ilmu Administrasi Negara ASIAN (Asosiasi Ilmuwan Administrasi Negara)
Source Issue	Vol. 10 No. 2 (2022): (September 2022)
Source Page	481-489
Url	https://jurnal.asian.or.id/index.php/JIANA/article/view/118/66
Author	SHADU SATWIKA WIJAYA, S.Sos, M.Si